Perkins+Will Atlanta Office

1315 Peachtree Street
Atlanta, Georgia

Perkins+Will’s Atlanta office is an adaptive reuse of a 1986 office structure transformed into a living laboratory and educational tool of sustainable technologies. By a thoughtful, interdisciplinary approach, the renovation supports the client’s environmental commitment to its staff, clients and community, its on-going pursuit of design excellence and its value to society.

As a multidisciplinary design firm, Perkins+Will is committed to design excellence and sustainability in both work and practice. Our new home had to reflect our values by meeting the highest levels of sustainability. Our designers needed an interdisciplinary, integrated work environment that fostered creative, inspiring design and served as a “living lab.” The project’s goal is to meet the 2030 Challenge by reducing greenhouse gas emissions by at least 60%, achieve LEED® Platinum certification, conserve water and eliminate the use of toxic and hazardous substances in building products.
